

ABOUT

Brigid V. Troan, DVM, DACVP

Toxicologic Pathologist, USA

Brigid Troan is a Toxicologic Pathologist at Inotiv. She supports toxicology studies involving mouse models of human disease, especially SARS-CoV-2, as well as histopathological evaluations. Previously, Dr. Troan focused on endocrine disruptor studies in Japanese Quail, fish reproductive pathology, and amphibian metamorphosis assays.

20 Years' Experience

Areas of Expertise

- SARS-CoV-2
- Pathobiology
- Avian and Herptile Pathology
- Medical Education

My Jam

- Gardening
- Needlepoint
- Scuba Diving and Underwater Photography
- Skiing
- Peloton
- STEM Education Outreach

Dr. Troan also works as the Diagnostic Pathologist at the North Carolina Zoological Park/Adjunct Professor in the Department of Clinical Science at the College of Veterinary Medicine, North Carolina State University. She provides support in diagnostic pathology for collection animals at the North Carolina Zoo as well as aiding in study design and evaluation of toxicologic studies in amphibian species. As an adjunct professor, she also participates in veterinary pathology resident training and lectures several times a year.

Dr. Troan has numerous publications, many of which are the result of multi-institutional studies with other universities through the Exotic Species Cancer Alliance and research institutes such as the CDC. She reviews articles for numerous scientific journals and is a member of the Exam Assembly and Administration Group for the American College of Veterinary Pathologists.

Dr. Troan received her D.V.M. from North Carolina State University College of Veterinary Medicine and is a A.C.V.P. Diplomate.

